Albig and Courier.

BOUTELLE & BURN, PROPRIETORS.

G. A. BOUTELLE, Editor.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burn, and communications intended for publication should be addressed "Editor of Albig and Courier."

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1860.

The Chicago Times breaks out in a new spot and makes the prediction that Chief Justice Fuller will be the Democratic candidate for President in 1893. Illinois, it says, will lead off for him with a solid vote in the convention. The Times seems to have side-tracked Gen. Palmer early in the race.

The New York Evening Post is still worrying its small mind over the "activities" of Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson. We believe it has not yet found time, however, to note the question of the Herald which wanted to know "how so many Democrats got into office under Reformer Cleveland." The Post did not have anything to say when Mr. Cleveland's assistants were decimating Republicans.

"If Mr. Blaauw managed Jay as well as he did Samoa," says the Chicago Journal, (Rep.), "the breakers will be greatly disappointed." What wonder, then, that he does what Samuel Aspinwall did—leaves his office hasty-like, carried off the plain of Secretary Bayard.—New York Evening Post.

If this is true why in the world old Secretary Bayard leaves his plans for some one else to execute? Surely he had ample time to settle the question before he went out of office?

Other cities in Maine have joined in the good work of raising contributions for the Pennsylvania sufferers. Bangor should not be behind in reducing aid toward alleviating the distresses—in that stricken section. Preacher Harrison remarked that every family in Washington could spare a blanket if nothing more and the suggestion is a good one. Clothing of all kinds is greatly needed and with a little organized effort in this city many destitute persons could be supplied with the necessary clothing to make them comfortable.

The Civil Service Commission severely condemns the fraudulent methods of conducting examinations in the New York Custom-house under the late Administration. The commissioners declare that the law was nullified and made ridiculous. One of the first acts of Mr. Cleveland's Administration was the reorganization of the New York Custom-house in the interest of the spokenmen. There was open and bare-faced fraud, and it was exposed at the time. If Cleveland had not been a party to this, there would have been no ground for this report of the Civil Service Commission.

The New York Evening Post says: "Governor Hill's message vetoes the Excise bill. It is probably the most vulnerable State paper to which any New York Governor has set his hand. It reads like a scathing editorial article in a backwoods Democratic weekly, and is as rich in abusive epithets as the speech of a bartender who is giving some despaired member of respectable society a piece of mind." True enough, yet should Gov. Hill secure the Democratic nomination in 1892 the Post would at once proceed to eulogize him. That is the style of the Mugwumps. The Times formerly declared that Mr. Cleveland was a vicious political trickster; but now it is singing his praises as a reformer.

The report comes from Kansas that a free trade professor has been invited to resign his chair in the University in that State. It is scarcely true that some action of this character was taken in our institutions of learning where the minds of the youth are systematically poisoned with a lot of theoretical ideas that have to be "spun out" before the young man is ready to grapple with the practical side of life. This is not only wrong in principle but is a positive injury to the young men themselves. The people of this country believe in protection, and so declared at the polls last fall. Kansas is overwhelmingly in favor of a protective policy and we are glad to see that her people refuse to longer permit the free trade doctrines to be instilled into the minds of the young men of that State.

Joe Howard writes in the New York Post: "Here is a sentence which is a veritable library of suggestions, taken from William Henry Smith's dispatch from Pittsburg concerning the peril which passengers on a Pennsylvania railway train were subjected to. It seems that the black head of the flood, high rail, was upon them. 'No words can adequately describe the terror that filled every breast, or the awful power manifested by the flood.' The round house had stalls for twenty-three locomotives. There were eighteen or twenty of these standing there at that time. There was an ominous crash, and the round house and locomotives disappeared." Now, there is a picture for the imagination. A massive brick structure, twenty enormous locomotives weighing hundreds of thousands of pounds together, annihilated in a moment, washed from the surface of the earth.

The Boston Day Book editorial on civil service reform declare that "there was a strong educational influence in the example given by the Cleveland administration, whose effect is very perceptible." This is the cheapest kind of rot. Some of the "educational influences" are now being unearthed in the New York Custom House and the Philadelphia Post-office where the most glaring frauds against the civil service law were enacted by the politicians put in office and kept in office by Mr. Cleveland. The appointment of the Civil Service Commission itself under Cleveland gives the lie to the kind of talk, the Post now indulges in. The New York Herald, a paper headed by the Harrison Administration, has thoroughly exposed the unfairness and injustice of attacks similar to that of the Post. The attempt to isolate Mr. Cleveland was made in the last campaign, but the people saw through it, this veneer of hypocrisy and retired him to private life.

Some Interesting Figures
(Chicago Inter-Ocean.)
The Northwestern Railroad puts forth a novel theory to account for an alleged increase of storms and floods in these latter years. It says that there are over 30,000 locomotives in use in North America, and that the vapor from these sent out into the atmosphere each week will measure over 30,000,000 cubic yards, which would be equivalent to nine or 7,000,000 cubic yards a day—enough to produce rainfall every twenty-four hours. Other manufacturers claim engines all right, but not here; so that the total vapor vapor discharged into the atmosphere must be each week more than 478,000,000,000 cubic yards.

A few facts and figures, based on scientific data, will show how much real water there is in that enormous quantity of vapor. It is evident that the locomotives and other steam engines in use in this country do not convert into vapor any more water than they use. In other words, evaporation and precipitation must be exactly equal. A single locomotive uses on average 10,000 gallons of water a day. Multiplying this by 30,000—the number of locomotives in the country—gives a total of 300,000,000 gallons consumed per day. If they all run 300 days per year the total yearly evaporation of water will be 90,000,000,000 gallons.

Estimating the number of other power-consuming engines to be eight times as great, in capacity, as the railroad puts it, the grand aggregate of evaporation by all the steam engines of America amounts to $10,000,000,000 ($10 billion) gallons.

That appears to be an immense volume of water; but it only equals the annual precipitation in two good sized counties in the regions blessed by abundant rainfall, as the figures will show. One inch of rain per square mile amounts to 14,000,000 gallons. Forty inches is a fair annual average of rainfall in the well-watered regions of the Mississippi Valley; and this gives a total of 380,000,000 gallons per square mile. Dividing the total product of steam evaporation by this sum, the result shows that it would furnish ample irrigation for about 1,000 square miles of land—over 38 geographical townships.

These figures shows that the total products of artificial evaporation if spread out over the entire continent would be exceedingly thin. We shall be obliged to depend upon solar energy to raise the vapors necessary for the maple irrigation of the soil.

Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter what the color of the hair, it preserves its natural and pliant qualities greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore it to its former condition, and render the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine Article. It has not only cured the hair of my wife and daughter to be."

Abundant and Glossy, both have given my mother strong proofs of its remarkable power and permanence."—R. Britton, Oakland, Calif.

"My hair was coming out (without any cause) and I was very anxious about it; as the best hair preparation I know is Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I tried it, and it kept my hair and healthy, and preserved the original texture for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. D., Toledo, Ohio.

"My hair was becoming parched and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy. I cannot express the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Hardy, DeKalb, Ill.
